The Pad Project

Helping women and girls in developing countries have a brighter future.

The Pad Project makes washable, re-useable maxi pad kits and distributes them to girls in impoverished areas around the world who desperately need, but can't afford, sanitary supplies. These durable and long-lasting kits consist of two waterproof base units (cut out and sewn together), four heavy liners and four light liners (cut out and folded, ready to be inserted into the base). They can be washed and re-used many times.

Faithful sewing teams around the country are making pad sets to send to girls around the world. The cloth, reusable pads can literally change the life of a young girl. When adolescent girls start menstruating in these impoverished areas they often have to miss about a week of school every month due to their lack of feminine sanitary products. This puts them hopelessly behind in school work and often makes them unable to pass the exam that determines if they will get to go to high school.

The Empire Church of the Brethren Women's Fellowship made 50 pad sets and shipped them to folks in Redmond, Washington who will deliver them to students in Tanzania in June. Undies were also purchased and sent to go along with the Pad Kits.
